Macbeth Themes Essay

Macbeth, another brilliant written piece by the famous William Shakespeare, is about a great warrior who gets overly greedy about hearing a prophecy of him eventually becoming king. Macbeth goes onto a killing spree and eliminates anyone who gets in the way of the throne. Macbeth soon realises what he has done, and is too late to undo his mistakes. In this play, there are several important main themes that are brought upon and can be related to today's society.

Firstly, the most important theme of Macbeth is ambition. Having ambition is life is great, but having too much can be dangerous. Ambition has some serious consequences in the play; Macbeth is slain as a tyrant and his wife, Lady Macbeth commits suicide. Shakespeare does not give either character happiness of what they had achieved of getting the throne. This might suggest that you have to achieve your goals fairly to be satisfied with your efforts than to attain them through dishonesty and corruption.

*MACBETH -
My thought, whose murder yet is but fantastical,
Shakes so my single state of man that function
Is smother'd in surmise, and nothing is
But what is not (1.3.9)*

As soon as the three witches foretell that Macbeth will be king, his view turns to murder, which the sisters have said nothing in relation to. The witches' prophecy awakens inside Macbeth a murderous ambition that was there all along.

Leading onto the next theme, the supernatural. The supernatural occurs four times during the play of Macbeth. It occurs in all the appearances of the three witches, in the visions of their prophecies, in the arrival of Banquo's ghost and in the floating dagger scene. The most important supernatural evident was the three witches, who lead Macbeth to evil ambition.

First Witch
When shall we three meet again
In thund'ral fire-flick'ring in rain?*

Essay Writing: Types of Essays

An essay is a short piece of writing that discusses, describes or analyses a topic. It can discuss a subject directly or indirectly, seriously or humorously. It can describe personal opinions, or just report information. An essay can be written from any perspective, but are most commonly written in the first person (I), or third person (subjects that can be substituted with he, she, it, or they pronouns).

There are many different kinds of essays. The following are some of the most common ones:

Expository

The function of the expository essay is to explain something to the reader by giving directions or instructions, or to acquaint your reader with knowledge about how to complete a task, or how something is done. You are demonstrating your own knowledge and explaining with facts, not your opinion. It is very important that your tone be reasonable and that your presentation be factual and believable.

Compare and Contrast

The essay could be an unbiased discussion, or an attempt to convince the reader of the benefits of one thing, person, or concept. It could also be written simply to entertain the reader, or to arrive at an insight into human nature. The essay could discuss both similarities and differences, or it could just focus on one or the other. A comparison essay usually discusses the similarities between two things, while the contrast essay discusses the differences.

Cause and Effect

The cause/effect essay explains why or how some event happened, and what resulted from the event. This essay is a study of the relationship between two or more events or experiences. The essay could discuss both causes and effects, or it could simply address one or the other. A cause essay usually discusses the reasons why something happened. An effect essay discusses what happens after a specific event or circumstance. Sources are often required in a cause/effect paper, and your choice of these sources is important as they reflect on the validity of your argument.

Argumentative (Persuasive)

An argumentative essay is one that attempts to persuade the reader to the writer's point of view. The writer can either be serious or funny, but always tries to convince the reader of the validity of his or her opinion. The essay may argue openly, or it may attempt to subtly persuade the reader by using irony or

Self-Introduction Scholarship Essay

My name is Abigail Lopez. I am a student at Southeastern College completing an associate's degree in science and planning on transferring to a four-year college or university. My educational aspirations consist of acquiring a bachelor's degree in any biological or health science that would assist me in pursuing a medical career as a doctor. On the other hand, my career vision is to one day be able to provide affordable health care to marginalized communities in the United States. However, I am certain that if I do not complete my college degree I could never have the opportunity to achieve my career goals. I decided that I will attain a career as a doctor since my passion has always been assisting others and trying to improve their quality of life. Therefore, I think that pursuing such a career will provide me the opportunity to help improve the community's health quality conditions and learn about their medical needs. After becoming a certified doctor, I want to specialize in oncology, the study of cancer, and add my knowledge to the cancer research field.

Furthermore, I want to contribute back to undeserved populations in the U.S. that struggle every day to sustain a family, and who do not have as much access to medical assistance as other privileged groups. The first health project I want to accomplish throughout my career as a doctor is to establish a free clinic where affordable medical assistance can be provided regardless of the patient's immigration status. The diverse health services would include free doctor consultations, low-price or free medication, and nutritional classes to prevent the presence of diabetes or heart disease. I also intend to provide an interpreter for patients in case they do not speak English and establish a financial assistance program to help patients who are not able to pay for any type of surgery that needs to be performed. The second biggest career goal that I want to accomplish is to establish a non-profit organization where I can create internships for medical school students around the U.S., and allow them to travel to isolated communities around the world to provide free medical services. I also want to provide nutrition education to support these marginalized communities, especially indigenous groups from Latin American countries. This will help contribute to the physical development of kids and offer a solution to malnutrition. I know that all of my goals will remain dreams if I do not complete my medical degree. Therefore, I am committed to working hard in school and looking for opportunities that could help me make my goals a reality.

This is why dad would always tell me how important education was. Right from the first day I joined school he always told me how important it was in life. How it wasn't just about how to learn to read and write, everyone could do that he said. It was all about using the education you got do make a difference.

That's also what the scouts taught me. Its great to know how to set camp, make a camp fire, practice first aid, but it's what you do with all that knowledge that counts.

The scout's motto is to be prepared. The only I can think of preparing my self for my future is trying to get a good education. Not just high school but I want to go the whole nine yards. I'm not going to stop till I get a college degree.

When I get older, I want to be somebody, not somebody famous, but somebody who makes a difference.
